2018 Community-Led Research Review Conference: Co-Learning & Connecting Around the Table

April 21, 2018
Children's Hospital in Los Angeles, CA

About the Conference:

Community-Campus Partnerships for Health is working to build a Community of Practice and expand our work in Community Review Processes. To achieve this goal, CCPH and Special Service for Groups (R&E) will co-host a 1-Day FREE 2018 Community-Led Research Review Conference: Co-Learning & Connecting Around the Table, on April 21, 2018 in Los Angeles, CA at the Children's Hospital. This conference is for community members with an emerging or existing community research review process (CRP).

Who should attend?

Community members with an emerging or existing community research review process (CRP).

Session Topics Include

- Why community review of research and why now?
- Deciding what route to take: community IRB, community research review committee, or another model?
- Managing the research submission and review process
- Developing relationships with institution-based IRBs
- Reviewer professional development
- Thinking about ways to foster mentorship and build other resources/building a community of practice
- Supporting institution-based IRBs to improve their reviews of CEnR
- Continuing conversation from morning sessions
